that no similar work is being planned for this summer.

This was a response to a query by Mr. Cornelius, who said rumors are being circulated that a $70,000 school building will be started this summer and that jobs are to be available. The rumors were contradicted by the board members.

A telegram from Public Works officials asking if local funds are available for the project which includes the Pahokee elementary school and a Belle Glade addition caused board members to believe the project must be hearing approval. The project must be sent to Washington for final approval after state acceptance, it was said.

The last of the teachers reappointed includes:

YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH IT
Fake accident racketeers are an insidious threat to every honest business and every individual. The following is one of a series of articles describing some of the tricks of the racketeers—showing that these tricks do not work against organized business, says a north Florida exchange. Watch out of them yourself.

The Woman With the Durable Skull
Mae Benedict, who also has half a dozen aliases, possesses without a doubt the national cross-country fractured skull record. She has suffered "injuries" to her head in cities from New Jersey to California, by way of Florida, Virginia, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Mae is unique among the fake accident and fraudulent claim artists. She seems to be less interested in damage awards than in obtaining the comforts of a hospital for as long as she can. Of course, the owners of whatever she claims caused her fake injuries pay the hospital bill.

These are just a few of the items on her record: May, 1928, admitted to a hospital in Los Angeles. August, 1928, appeared at hospitals in Palm Beach and Oklahoma City, in each case stating that she had been attacked by men. April, 1931, claimed to have been hit on the head with a revolver in a scuffle in the back seat of an automobile which she had hailed for a ride. Remained in hospital at Roanoke, Va., fifty-four days. July, 1933, alleged injuries when she was struck back of head against a window frame on an elevated train in Chicago. July, 1933, alleged skull fracture from injury on boat in San Francisco.

"During Mae's three-weeks stay in a San Francisco hospital, a doctor became suspicious, and as a result, her story was revealed. She admitted that in faking fractured skulls, she has deceived expert doctors everywhere and been in close to fifty hospitals. Due to a mastoid operation one of her eyes became slightly dilated. This, along with her pretension of nausea, double vision, fake convulsions, intense pain, and the trick of biting her lip to draw blood and placing it in her ear with a piece of gauze, was usually successful in simulating a fractured skull.

Henceforth, Mae will not find it so easy to practice her game. She has a national reputation now, and the vigilant under-cover forces of the Index Bureau System maintained by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters are constantly on guard to check her first slip. A sentence behind prison bars awaits her, and thousands of others who still don't know the hard truth. "You can't get away with it."

A jolly crowd made up of members of the sixth and seventh grades enjoyed a swimming party at the Lake Worth casino Saturday. The group were taken in by Mr. and Mrs. Keen in the school bus accompanied by Miss Laura Crow, Miss Gertrude Miller and Principal Ned Kocher. Those enjoying the outing included Madie McLeod, Eugene Hardy, Clarence, Alonzo Cooper, "Pato" Clemons, Bill Frame, Marguerite and Lucille Barnes, Helen Louise Walker, Carl Barstow, Vernon Henderson, Doris Moody and Maurine Mathis.

S. E. Campbell after picking 1800 field crates of tomatoes from a 55 acre tract field has sold the remainder of his tomatoes in the field and is making plans for an immediate departure to Wauchuck, Kan., where he has a wheat crop to harvest this summer. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Campbell.

President Names J. W. Holland To Federal Judgeship

Nomination Announced In Washington Late Tuesday

John W. Holland of Jacksonville, United States district attorney, was nominated last Tuesday to the federal judgeship from which the Senate last month removed Hallett I. Ritter.

Holland, a 52-year-old native of Jackson, Tenn., said he was "most happy" that President Roosevelt had designated him but declined to say a word about the situation that confronts him as the result of Ritter's refusal to give up his chambers at Miami.

Ritter likewise maintained silence on the development but said he would be ready soon to start his contemplated proceedings before the federal court of claims attacking the validity of his impeachment. The senate convicted Ritter on House impeachment charges of improper conduct.

Holland's nomination was announced in Washington. Senator Fletcher (D-Fla.) recommended Holland to the Department of Justice, which submitted his name to the president.

Holland said Wednesday morning he had not been notified officially of the nomination and would prefer to reserve comment for public expression until officially notified.

"I say, however," he continued, "that I shall be most happy to receive official notification of my appointment and confirmation."

Holland was prosecuting cases in federal building in Miami Tuesday. He was appointed attorney for the Southern Florida district in July, 1933, succeeding the late Republican W. P. Hughes. The district includes Southern and Northeastern Florida, with judges in Miami and at Jacksonville and Tampa.

Holland is a former law partner of Fletcher.

Oyster Farms Are Denied U. S. Mails

Restricting Order Issued By Judge Strum Against Popham Enterprises

Federal District Judge Louie W. Strum last Friday temporarily enjoined the cultivated oyster farms corporation of Jacksonville and William Lee Popham, president of the company, from using the mails or any other means of interstate commerce to advertise or sell stock in the development of oyster beds near Jacksonville, Fla.

The restraining order was issued on application of the federal securities and exchange commission, which claimed the Jacksonville company and its president had not complied with rules of the commission.

The postoffice department also joined the securities and exchange commission in complaints against Popham's company claiming he used the mails to "further further order of the court."

Popham served part of a term in the Atlanta Federal prison for violation of the federal securities laws, charges of using the mails to defraud investors in his oyster farm project. He claimed he was "framed" by business competitors.

Judge Strum's order restrained Popham's corporation and its president "until further order of the court."

No date was set for hearings on the temporary injunction.

Farley Says Bonus Bonds Will Soon Be In The Mails

Paying Postoffices Listed By The Postmaster General

Several hundred ex-service men in the Everglades section are expected to receive their adjusted compensatory "bonus bonds" soon after June 15, the date on which the bonds and checks for the odd dollars are scheduled to move out from federal reserve districts to post offices. Postmaster General James A. Farley last week announced detailed plans for these payments and designated 241 post offices throughout the country as paying offices.

According to a United Press story, bonus bonds will be sent out on June 15 from Washington and the post offices of the 11 federal reserve district centers. All will be sent as registered mail and Farley said he had instructed the carriers to "go out of their way" to assist in their delivery. Identification will be required of all veterans.

If he wants to cash his bonus bonds, the veterans must get them certified at his local post office. If the postmaster or designated employee knows him, no witnesses are necessary; otherwise he has to take two witnesses who are known to the postal workers and who will identify the federal court of claims attacking the validity of his impeachment. The senate convicted Ritter on House impeachment charges of improper conduct.

Holland's nomination was announced in Washington. Senator Fletcher (D-Fla.) recommended Holland to the Department of Justice, which submitted his name to the president.

Holland said Wednesday morning he had not been notified officially of the nomination and would prefer to reserve comment for public expression until officially notified.

"I say, however," he continued, "that I shall be most happy to receive official notification of my appointment and confirmation."

Holland was prosecuting cases in federal building in Miami Tuesday. He was appointed attorney for the Southern Florida district in July, 1933, succeeding the late Republican W. P. Hughes. The district includes Southern and Northeastern Florida, with judges in Miami and at Jacksonville and Tampa.

It Is Your Duty To Vote Next Tuesday, June 2nd

The government of our nation and of this great state are in your hands, it is your loyal duty to go to the polls and vote on next Tuesday, June 2nd.

Vote for the candidate who you think will serve your state and county in the best manner possible for the common good of all its people. One of the largest ballots in the history of Florida is presented for your consideration. This is your opportunity to place into authority men who will push this state forward to greater achievements.

Junior Chamber Quizzed All Legislative Candidates

Letters were mailed this week to candidates for the State Legislature, asking them to make definite declaration of their stand on the question of stock-fencing in Florida, in connection with the drive of the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce and other state-wide and civic organizations for such laws.

The letters, containing pledges to be signed by the candidates, were sent by the safety committee of the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce, which accompanied them with a request from the committee, acting for the state body as a whole, that answer be made immediately and prior to the June 2nd Democratic primaries.

A letter was sent to each candidate for the House of Representatives.

Several hundred ex-service men in the Everglades section are expected to receive their adjusted compensatory "bonus bonds" soon after June 15, the date on which the bonds and checks for the odd dollars are scheduled to move out from federal reserve districts to post offices.

According to a United Press story, bonus bonds will be sent out on June 15 from Washington and the post offices of the 11 federal reserve district centers. All will be sent as registered mail and Farley said he had instructed the carriers to "go out of their way" to assist in their delivery. Identification will be required of all veterans.

If he wants to cash his bonus bonds, the veterans must get them certified at his local post office. If the postmaster or designated employee knows him, no witnesses are necessary; otherwise he has to take two witnesses who are known to the postal workers and who will identify the federal court of claims attacking the validity of his impeachment. ## LANDIS STAYS CLOSE TO JOB

Attorney General Tells Record of Service

TALLAHASSEE, May 28.—Attorney General Cary D. Landis took time off from official business as Florida's legal advisor today to tell the people of the state he has served for the past five years what he wants to be re-elected to office.

General Landis, a veteran of Florida law courts and a successful small law office in the City of Deland—Red Fish—now United States Minister of Egypt and I formed a partnership in 1904. The people of this state were good to us.

"I lost two of my children, and have now a son—who took over the responsibility of carrying on the practice of law in 1926.

When the position of Attorney General was offered me by appointment, I saw my opportunity of serving the people of this state who had been so generous and good to me. I did not accept the position with any political ambition in mind. I do not have any political ambition for any other state or national office."

Speakers at the meeting concurred in the great need Florida has for an industrial and engineering experiment station at the University. Many Florida municipalities, they declared, have been unable to close deals with many large manufacturing companies who wished to locate in Florida because the cities could not answer technical industrial questions.

These questions could have been answered by the proposed experiment station and many of these industrial and manufacturing plants would now be located in Florida, they declared.

"Pitifully inadequate" was the term used by speakers at the meeting in referring to College of Engineering at Gainesville. All paid high prices for the products of Leer and his associates, but declared "it is a crime" that the College of Engineering does not have a larger staff and more up-to-date and complete apparatus for experimentation and practical work concerning engineering.

H. I. Mossberger, Miami, has been appointed chairman of a subcommittee to investigate conditions at the College of Engineering and report back to State Chamber group. His committee-men are L. C. Parks, Pensacola, and William Ostner, Jacksonville.

A definite movement is on foot in the paper, shoe and hosiery manufacturers toward decentralization. It was reported by Mr. Parks, who said he is in contact with several concerns interested in West Florida. He urged that Florida concentrate its endeavors waste smaller concerns and not try to compete with the large, intricate and established industries to leave their present locations. "The little businesses will attract others and all will grow as the years pass," is the credo he recommended.

A state allocation of more than $1,000,000 to the county schools will probably be increased to $500,000 by local tax income during the three weeks before the final teacher payroll is due on June 5, Joe A. Youngblood, county school superintendent, said last Monday.

Official notification of the state payments was received the first of the week.

If the final school month payroll is met on June 5 the schools will complete the year with a total of $450,000 in nine installments, each on the due date.

Lottin To Serve Unexpired Term In U. S. Senate

Named to Post Held By Late Park Trammell by Governor

Scott Marion Lottin of Jacksonville will be Florida's junior United States senator until a successor to the late Park Trammell is elected in November and seated in January.

Governor Sholtz last Tuesday appointed Lottin, immediate past president of the American Bar association, to fill the vacancy until after the election in which Sholtz hopes to be named senator for the term which expires in 1931.

Lottin, a Democrat and a corporation lawyer, started for Washington soon after receiving the appointment. He said he would support President Roosevelt and the Robinson resolution proposing a new survey and additional funds for the Florida ship canal projects.

The appointee, a 58-year-old bachelor, said he did not seek the office and would not be a candidate for Trammell's unexpired term. Florida Democrats are expected to nominate a candidate for senator at a special election possibly in September. State Republicans will nominate their candidate through action of the party executive committee.

Commerce Committee Of Chamber Hears Report

Commission Paves Way For Election On Next Tuesday

Additional Equipment To Be Purchased For Precincts

County commissioners completed arrangements for the primary election Tuesday at a short meeting held last Monday.

Purchase of additional equipment to provide more voting booths was authorized. County Engineer Jack Boyd, said that about 180 booths will be needed for the primary, allowing one booth for every 70 to 100 qualified voters.

The board also authorized purchase of 25 more ballot boxes which the engineer said will be of varied size, being cans ranging from 12 to 18 inches.

Although the primary arrangements were just being completed, the commission received from the secretary of state the certified list of Republican nominees to be included on the November general election ballot. The list includes seven presidential electors, Thomas E. Swanson for congress, and E. E. Callaway for governor.

The board set June 22 as the date for receiving bids on the Lake Worth bridge. The project will be completed in three weeks prior to that time.

Officers in the courthouse occupied by the Interoceanic Railroad were leased for another year for $120, the commission pointing out that if the new post office is completed here by next year the federal office might be moved to allow more space for county offices in the courthouse.

Acting Attorney Albert Rankin announced that a condemnation suit by the Interoceanic Railroad for the right-of-way for the overpass on Cross-state highway at the Seaboard Air Line railway tracks, has been set for trial on Wednesday, June 3.

FLORIDA'S NEXT EXHIBIT TO BE IN CLEVELAND, O.

Exhibits Will Surpass Colorful Showing At World's Fair

The offices and studios of the Florida National Exhibits, located in Deland, present scenes of activity as executives, architects, landscape engineers, artists, sculptors and contractors begin work on the great exhibit of the state's resources and attractions which will be a striking feature of the Great Lakes Exposition to be held in the city of Cleveland this summer.

In many respects the Florida exhibit at Cleveland will surpass the colorful showings made by the state at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933-1934 or in Rockefeller Center last winter, according to a statement made by Earl W. Brown, after a series of conferences with Governor Sholtz; Nathan Mayo, Commissioner of Agriculture, who will have charge of the agricultural and horticultural displays; and the Florida National Exhibits, located in Deland, present scenes of activity as executives, architects, landscape engineers, artists, sculptors and contractors begin work on the great exhibit of the state's resources and attractions which will be a striking feature of the Great Lakes Exposition to be held in the city of Cleveland this summer.

While many of the dioramas and other features of the Florida exhibit at Chicago and New York will be used at Cleveland, thus reducing the aggregate cost of participation, the exhibit on the whole will be absolutely new and the most attractive thus far produced," said Mr. Brown. "We have on hand more than $100,000 worth of exhibit material used in past shows and which attracted the earnest attention of millions of residents of the middle west and the metropolitan area of New York City and caused them to come to the state in hitherto unheard of numbers during the four tourist seasons past. Now, it is our intention to utilize as much of that material as possible and with added features present at Cleveland an exhibit which will be a revelation to the 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 people who make their homes within the trade radius of that city."

"We have it on the authority of the Florida State Hotel commission and other agencies and persons whose business it is to keep a check on such things that the tourist seasons of 1935-36, 1936-37 and 1937-38, were the most prosperous in the history of the state, with the season of 1935-36 the most prosperous of all, having had more than 2,000,000 visitors who spent approximately $500,000,000.

During the four months—December, January, February and March—those authorities admit that the exhibits made by the state at Chicago and New York were powerful factors in inducing those visitors to come in such numbers.

"In the Cleveland area are tens of thousands of men and women who are recipients of liberal pensions from great industrial organizations they have served well and winter in Florida would prolong their lives and who are in a financial position to indulge in winter comfort. We feel sure that when they attend the exposition in Cleveland, as thousands of them have done in the past, they will be induced to come in Florida and the exhibit of Florida's attractions will arouse in them a local consciousness which will prompt them to visit the state."

"But we are interested in widening the markets of Florida's fruits, winter vegetables and other products, as well as in increasing tourist patronage. It has been reported to us that as a result of Florida's participation in A Century of Progress, sales of Florida citrus fruits alone were increased 27 per cent in the trade territory of Chicago. We have no figures covering the results of last winter's exhibit in New York, but we are assured that a marked increase in consumption has been noted. What was done at Chicago and New York in the way of stimulating interest in Florida products will be duplicated in Cleveland."

"The management of the Cleveland exposition guarantee an attendance of 4,000,000 during the 100 days of the show, with a potential attendance of 8,000,000. In addition to the millions who will visit the exposition and be given a visualization of Florida's attractions and wonders, other millions will be made aware of them through newspapers and magazines, by news reels in theatres and over the air. An exhibit open to the public for 100 days, and otherwise attainable, as witness the vast amounts of publicity of all kinds given the Florida exhibits at New York and Chicago, as shown by our clipping files.

SIXTH CENSUS OF FLORIDA IS MADE

Commissioner Mayo Issues
Very Interesting and Informative Book

The Florida State Department of Agriculture has just published the report of the last census of the state—this being the sixth census taken since the first one in the year 1885. The state has been a census report every 10 years. There have been other census reports prepared but they were the work of the United States Government.

Government officials upon examination of the present report have been unending in their praise of the most complete manner in which the present volume has been compiled. They have said that "no other state in the Union has ever printed a report of this nature that contained so much valuable information," and they add, "it is even superior to the census report prepared by the U. S. Government."

Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture, through the aid of his staff of skilled assistants spent several months assembling and tabulating facts contained in this comparatively small book and it will prove of lasting value to many firms and individuals within our state.

"The formation of counties and changes in their boundaries by years" forms an interesting chapter in the fore part of the book. The "Origin and Names of the Various Counties" follows.

A study of the "population of Florida from 1880 to 1930," shown on page 9 will interest every resident of Florida. Then follows tables giving the "population by counties" every 10 years, beginning with the year 1880.

Page 12 has a table giving the "population by races," and including this table is the tabulation "population by counties according to race and sex," and tables showing the "minor civil divisions" by "race and voting age."

On pages 58 and 59 respectively are tabulations of "population of senatorial and congressional districts, according to 'race and sex,'" exclusive of state convicts.

"The percentage of increase or decrease in white population" in each county (except state convicts), and the table giving the same information of the "colored population" are set forth on pages 62-63. The "rural population" information which succeeds the former chapters offers a very interesting study.

The tabulation of children 2 years of age and under of the white and colored races" is an analysis together with the lists of those of 6 to 12 years of age, those of 13 to 20 years old, those 21 to 50, 60 to 64 and the final table of those of 65 and over, offers food for thought.

Even the population of the cities, towns and villages by counties has been enumerated, and this information has in turn been separated to show the "race and sexes of the populations," and the "white and colored residents" of each of Florida's residents.

Beginning on page 129 is a very unusual schedule of statistics, these figures being given to show the number of people engaged in the various "vocations in each county."

"The appendix" contains the "United States census of Florida for 1930" (or five years previous to the publication of this report), and as a final supplement, an excellent sheet contains the "number of inmates" in both the "penal" and "state" institutions segregated by counties according to "race and sex."

This digest of the contents of this volume will give the reader an idea of the mass of information contained in this report and we believe it is unnecessary to state that mail order houses, manufacturers, judges of our courts, lawyers, school teachers, libraries, and many others will find this book of incalculable value to them.

It has been prepared in accordance with the laws of the state, for free distribution. Send a postal card to Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture, Tallahassee, Florida, and a copy will be sent to you.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY
By Russell Kay.

Maybe you've attended a meeting of a Townsend club, and maybe you haven't but I'm telling you it's a hot and old-fashioned revival. I've been backed off the boards. With all this congressional investigation and alleged exploit of the racket, I thought I'd drop around and see how the old folks were taking it.

Are they down-hearted? NO! Have they lost faith? NO! Not a bit of it. All this opposition and congressional meddling has served to do is just make the Townsendites hot more determined to force the issue.

There were no sound waves on the streets heralding the meeting, the newspapers carried no advertisements and it wasn't even announced over the radio. No chance on a automobile, no hand signs, even refreshments were offered as an inducement to attend, but nevertheless there were 699 people at the gathering and a lot of folks had to stand up.

No general staff on a field of battle ever lacked a problem more determinedly or any more seriously than these folks set about their task to put over the Townsend plan, so if you think the idea is all washed up and the old folks are just fooling around, you've got plenty to think of.

Unless I'm a total loss at judging human nature and hand writ on the wall, I'm convinced that the newspaper carried no advertisements and it wasn't even announced over the radio. No chance on a automobile, no hand signs, even refreshments were offered as an inducement to attend, but nevertheless there were 699 people at the gathering and a lot of folks had to stand up.

Suppose, if instead of $200 a month, a pension of say $50 was provided to all over the age of sixty; this would give an aged couple $100 to coexist around with and folks with pensions would rest and seek the most desirable and comfortable place to settle down and spend the rest of their days.

If Florida is smart, she'll take more than a passing interest in old age pensions. This state is a "natural" as an "Old Folks Home." Let almost any kind of an old age pension plan become effective and we'll have more prospective customers.

tomers than we ever dreamed of. If you think grandpa and grandma are gonna stay cooped up, tend on the furnace and nurse their rheumatism all winter when they could be down here merrily with restored health, sunshine, flowers and mockin' birds—you're crazy.

Our job right now is to quit smart-crackin' about the old folks and start makin' a sure 'nuff fuss over 'em. Florida is going to Cleveland this summer and will tell our story to millions in the Great Lakes area when the Florida Exhibit is staged as a part of the Great Lakes exposition.

Let's make a special appeal to the Townsend folks and once those people up in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, western New York and Pennsylvania get the vision of what a home in Florida really means, I'm tellin' you they'll get that pension or that congress wide open—or the other.

All I ask is a chance to take some old couple by the hand and lead 'em through our Florida Exhibit—let 'em smell that orange blossom perfume and see the bearing citrus trees. Those marvelous dioramas will just naturally knock 'em for a loop and when I point to the 12-pound black bass and say "How'd you like to get in an argument with a big boy like I do?"—I'm bettin' it would take a couple of truck horses to hold grandpa. Then I'd tell grandpa how pretty the view is from the front porch, overlooking the lake, sparkling in the sunshine, and how the mockin' birds wake you up every mornin', and how nice it is to have fresh vegetables from your own little garden all winter long to say nothin' of rambler roses peckin' in the window at you while you're doin' the breakfast dishes. Tell me I couldn't sell Florida!

Step over here Miss Florida, and let me decorate you with this Townsend button and if you haven't done so, write your congressman and senators and tell 'em how you stand.

Swat The Filthy, Dirty Fly

Fly time is high time that we were getting busy in cool and against these pests. Besides annoying bald-heads men by lighting on the bald spots, flies are a general nuisance around the house and are possible spreaders of diseases. If you value the health and comfort of ourselves and our families, we should not stop until we have protection from flies in our homes.

Flies breed in filth and rubbish. So one of the first things to do in a fly campaign is to clean up the filth and rubbish. Barn lots are especially used as breeding places by flies. If possible, manure should be cleaned up once a week and either spread in the field or placed in a screened manure pit.

Fifty places should not be tolerated near the house, not only for the prevention of flies but also for looks and sanitation.

Then the house should be by all means, be screened. Screened windows and doors and a cool and comfortable screened porch are requisites of every up-to-date farm home, and none should be without them. Care should be taken to see that the screens fit snugly, so that no openings are left for flies and mosquitoes to enter.

There will be some flies that get into a screened house, and a swatter should always be handy for chasing them. Whenever a fly is spotted, it should be chased and smothered ruthlessly.

Sticky papers and poisons should be used when necessary. The day of the old brush "shoo-fly" for keeping flies away from the table while the family is eating is past. The brush may shoo the flies away for a while, but they'll come right back. They have a habit of lighting right on your food before you start to take a bite, and that is not very appetizing.

Cleaning up breeding places, screening and swatting will be more effective in keeping the flies off of the food.

HODGES TAKES FALSE CREDIT FOR START OF HOMESTEAD BILL

(Crescent City Journal)

In a series of advertisements printed in several state papers last week William C. "Tallahassee Bill" Hodges makes the statement that "twenty years ago Senator Hodges introduced the first bill to exempt homes from taxation. This bill received but two votes. But he carried the fight on continuously and in 1934 the people exempted the homes."

Now, the truth is, that Hodges was not even a member of the Senate twenty years ago. Twenty years ago he had but shortly concluded a race for Governor as a candidate on the Bull Moose ticket. He was not a member of the Senate in fact until 13 years ago, serving his first term in the 1923 session of the Florida Senate.

The claims of Senator Hodges to the introduction of the first homestead bill twenty years ago is being challenged by old time residents of Osceola county who recall that twenty years ago Senator Donagan from that county introduced a "Resolution proposing the amendment of Article 10 of the constitution of the state of Florida relating to Homestead exemptions so as to exempt from taxation property used by the owners for home purposes."

On page ten of the Times-Union of Jacksonville for May 23, 1915, appears a story concerning this fight waged by Senator Donagan of central Florida for the exemption of homes from taxation.

"Bill Hodges," said a recent speaker, "did not start this idea but climbed on the band wagon after the other boys had already cranked it up."

4-H Members to Take Part In Promoting Farm Electrification

4-H boys and girls are to play an important part in the nationwide rural electrification movement now under way which is expected to bring the number of farms in the United States served by electrical energy to one million or more by the end of the year.

Through the aid of an educational program originated by the National 4-H committee and conducted in cooperation with extension agents 4-H members will make surveys of farms and communities which will provide data valuable in building high lines and in making the most efficient use of electric power.

In addition to the value of the data which 4-H members will gather, they are offered special inducements to participate by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, as sponsor of this program. The inducements include college scholarships and many other prizes. The scholarships are for $400, $300, and $200 and are awarded to the club members in the nation who make the best reports as judged by a committee of club leaders.

The work of the boys and girls will be in with that of the agricultural colleges, farm groups, power interests, and the federal Rural Electrification administration which is making loans at three per cent on a twenty year amortization basis to farm groups to build rural lines.

At least three-fourths of the one million enrolled 4-H members should have no difficulty in carrying this program through to completion. It has been approved by the state club leader and rules may be obtained of county extension agents.

Dade Countian Sues Barber For Misinformation

Close on the heels of a new quotation by a barber on Forsyth street in Jacksonville, who terms himself a political prognosticator, came information from Robert H. Duncan, attorney, that a traveling man, O. M. Knight of Miami, had instructed him to take legal action on the charge that "the misinformer" had caused him to lose Knight loss of time, needless expense, and other damages involving legal redress.

In substantiating claim for legal action, Mr. Duncan cites an editorial which appears in the Fort Myers News-Press, under date of April 25, and which among other things, said:

"In the current political game O. M. Knight, a Miami traveling salesman, gets an assist if not a pigout for showing up a brazen racket that has been worked on candidates and perhaps some of the public this year.

"Frank Tracey, a Jacksonville barber, capitalized it. Styling himself a 'political prognosticator' he founded his enterprises on the assertion that he had never missed a guess and advertised that his information was gained by polling a mailing list which he said represented an accurate cross-section of state opinion. A feature of the 'service' was to give the poll the color of authenticity by posting the results."

against Grady Burton who was one of the long shots on Tracey's list.

"By adroit publicity Tracey drew attention to his racket and soon had some of the candidates worrying about the influence they thought his odds might have on the handwoven vote. When they complained Tracey told them a poll cost him $750 and suggested that if they put up the money he would take another poll which might show them in a better light. Some of them apparently coughed and it was noted that the odds invariably improved for the donor of the postage. Candidates so investigating seemed satisfied with the results though that Tracey spent $250 for stamps and paid himself $700 for guessing.

"As some of the quotations were the prevailing odds a few real bets were no doubt made in Tracey's book but when somebody offered to take the short end of a long shot the reply was that the man willing to put up the other end of the bet was out. This usually got rid of the applicant but it didn't get rid of Knight. Noting 10 to 1 posted against Jerry Carter the Miami politician said he would take $100 worth of that, which called for $1,000. Told that the fellow was a making list which he said represented an accurate cross-section of state opinion. A feature of the 'service' was to give the poll the color of authenticity by posting the results."

"Of course there is nobody in his right mind willing to bet $1,000 to $100 against Jerry at this stage of the game; nor against Judge P. T. Tracy, quoted at the same odds, to say nothing of venturing 25 to 1 against Grady Burton who was one of the long shots on Tracey's list.

On the other hand the quotations of Hodges, Chappell and Patey were exceedingly liberal, which gives a possible clue to how a political prognosticator makes a living.

The new quotation by the "political prognosticator" keeps Hodges and Chappell as favorites, but moves Jerry Carter from a position of a long shot to a six to one possibility, with the notation "Carter has made gains," and adds that "Carter will poll a good vote."

The "prognosticator" who heads his prognostications "Odds for Pay or Play," offers $500 to $1 against Stoddard Caldwell, and $5,000 to $1 against Carl Maples, R. B. Gaudier, Malle Marlin, Amos Lewis, J. R. Yarrowood.

BELLE GLADE BAPTISTS TO HOLD REVIVAL
The First Baptist church of Belle Glade will begin a revival on Sunday, June 7th. Dr. W. M. Sentell, pastor, will do the preaching and the music will be in charge of Mr. W. L. Cunningham and a large chorus choir. The services will be held daily at 8 p. m., in the temporary tabernacle of the church during the week and at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. on Sundays.

Dr. and Mrs. Sentell have been enthusiastically received by the people of Belle Glade and increasingly large congregations have greeted them each Sunday since they arrived on May 2. Informal reception was tendered them on Wednesday night following.

WHY CHANGE?
Under the administration of State Comptroller J. M. Lee, Florida has gone places and done things in a financial way.

Florida has gone to the corporate interests and concentrations of wealth and by enforcing rigidly and fairly and impartially utilities taxes, motor transportation taxes, intangible taxes, documentary stamp taxes and other revenue laws, we have collected millions of dollars rightly and properly due the state and on the same basis as paid by the masses and taxpayers of moderate means.

With the replenishing of the treasury

has provided free school books.

has paid teachers their deserved salaries.

has eliminated $1,500,000 to provide death traps at state institutions and feed-lots at state colleges and universities as well as the new tubercular hospital.

has created substantial balance in the pension fund.

has paved way to pay old age pensions soon as appropriations are provided.

has returned more than a quarter million dollars of improperly collected taxes to our citizens.

has insured a substantial reduction in state tax millage.

has enabled schools to run full term—when no one dreamed such a feat possible prior to successful culmination of tax paying drive he inaugurated.
